State Rights.

A reply to a recent communication published in the Sentinel, under the signature "State Rights," will be found in our paper to-day. We can vouch for the Republicanism of the writer. He is a prominent and working member of the party, well known through the State, and any suggestions from him are entitled to respectful consideration. So far as the Chief Justiceship is concerned, we do not know his choice among the names that he intends to suggest, nor do we know the constitutional question of "State Rights," he does not think it wise to raise an issue at this time. Read the article.

A Scene in the Senate.

The telegraph reports an exciting time in the Senate, on the question of confirming the appointment of Mr. Lincoln as Minister to France. Among other things, it says that "Senator Sumner gave vent to his feelings in a most energetic manner, and that he was warmly supported by the Republicans." It also says that "Senator Sumner gave vent to his feelings in a most energetic manner, and that he was warmly supported by the Republicans."

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

An article appeared in the Sentinel of Saturday last concerning the nomination for Chief Justiceship, very unanimously in favor of "State Rights." This term—"State Rights"—is popularly advanced in discussions to the popular views advanced by Judge Sumner in his opinion in the Glover case, and means the right of every State in the Union, through its Legislature, to pronounce upon the constitutionality of the laws of the United States, and to obey or disregard them as it shall see proper.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

It is not true that the German Republicans are unanimously in favor of the construction of the Constitution. At least one German Republican newspaper takes strong and decided ground against it; arguing not only that the Federal Constitution does not admit of such a construction, but that the Republican party would be very short-sighted to desire the existence of such a right in the several States.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

There is not a Republican State, except Wisconsin, where a man could be elected on this issue. It is a doctrine that originated with the slaveholding aristocracy—with the Randolphs and Calhouns—which is today the pet-hobby of South Carolina and Mississippi politicians, which is a hundred times more potent to defend slavery than to protect liberty.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

Where is a Republican that would vote for a Republican candidate for President, who would not protect the laws of the Republic? Congress, pronounced constitutional by a Republican Supreme Court in South Carolina, notwithstanding the opinion of the Supreme Court. The constitutional obligation is just as strong when a law is of Democratic origin, and has been sanctioned by a Democratic Supreme Court.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

The Republican party, on the eve of a national triumph, should beware of taking untenable positions. The fugitive slave act is odious and oppressive. We will support it, not because we are afraid of the people of the Union, but because we are afraid of the people of the Union.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

And, at the most, this doctrine of "State Rights" is not a doctrine that every man who does not approve it, must be kicked out of the party. There are a great many men in this State, radically opposed to slavery, who hate the fugitive act with all the earnest hatred that a lover of liberty and justice feels against wrong and oppression, who endorse to the full extent every principle promulgated in the Philadelphia platform, but who are conscientiously opposed to "State Rights."

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

The writer of the article in Saturday's paper, "State Rights," assumes that LINCOLN, as a man of Washington, that a Democratic Chief Justice would be elected next Spring. What authority has he for assuming this? Judge Dixon is the appointee of a Republican Governor. He calls himself a Republican. It is understood that he regards the fugitive act as unconstitutional and wrong—that he repudiates the doctrine of the U. S. Supreme Court in his regard to that act and in the case of Dred Scott—that he endorses the principles of the Republican party as expressed by their State and National Conventions.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

His only offense is that in his opinion the Supreme Court of the United States is the final interpreter of the laws of the United States, instead of holding to the other theory that there are thirty-three other final interpreters of such laws, besides that tribunal. Does that make him a Democrat? The writer hereof does not think so.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

Gov. Seward's Reception in the Senate. It has been already announced that Senator Seward's appearance in the Senate Chamber on the 17th inst. has been a grand success. The fact that he has been received with such a warm and cordial reception, is a great triumph for the Republican party.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

GOING TO FAR.—The Louisville Courier, a leading Democratic paper, and the special champion of Mr. GURNEY, says of the Democratic State Convention at Columbus: "There was a State Convention in Ohio the other day which called itself Democratic, and which was held in the city of Columbus. It was a very successful one, and it was a very successful one."

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

THE POST-OFFICE REVENUE.—The director of the Post-Office Revenue, authorizing his subordinates to search the mails and postage stamps for "incendiary" matter, is leaving abundant fruit. The Janet writes that this gives the experience of the workings of this new Democratic rule.

The Chief Justiceship and "State Rights."

We have in our experience a case where a "suspended" letter has been delivered in this city. The letter was addressed to a gentleman in the city of New York, and it was a very successful one.

TWENTY STEPS TO ONE WOMAN'S HEART.
 As I approached his room I heard the tinkle of his guitar, and when I opened the door I found him stretched back in a cushioned chair, smoking a meerschaum, and regarding the ceiling, while his fingers played lastly over the strings of the instrument. His figure, dressed as unexceptionally as ever and his handsome face wearing the same old geniality as it shone upon me through the fumes of scotch-whisky. He did not rise as I entered but acceded to me without disturbing his repose.
